SETTLEMENT OF WAGE ROW URGED

Government Relinquishes Price Fixing Power April 1.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.—Government control over the maximum price of bituminous coal was withdrawn today by president Wilson, effective April 1.

At the same time the president wrote the operators and miners transmitting the majority report of the coal commission and informing them that this report was the basis upon which the wage schedule agreements between the mine workers and operators shall be made.

Open Way for Higher Prices.

By removing government control of prices, effective April 1, the president gave the way for increased coal prices to absorb the average 25 percent increase recommended in the majority report.

The president wrote the operators and miners that it was "essential to the public welfare that the agreements be concluded at the earliest date practicable so that the uncertainty of the coal supply may be removed and that the coal supply may be made to meet the needs of the country."

The president said he assumed that neither party would raise prices and that he was confident that no question could properly be raised as to the binding character of the agreement. The majority of the commission, notwithstanding the fact that it was a minority report.

The president said that he was confident that the coal operators and miners would reach a settlement of the wage row by April 1.
